A student is required to answer ALL questions in this section

QUESTION 3

Six points against using African languages in African literature.

- Undevelopment and underdevelopment of African languages. Writers cannot write in languages that have not been developed to have a written form, or languages that have not been developed to the level at which they could be used in literature.
- Absence of government language policies. Government policies that could encourage the use of African languages in African literature are absent.
- Lack of promotion of African languages in Employment and Education system. There is no African country where a credit pass in an African language is a criterion for promotion in the civil service, admission to a university or employment.
- Complex linguistic situation is in Africa (Multilingualism). It is estimated that there are 2035 African languages at present. This situation is possibly responsible for the lack of government policies that could encourage the use of African languages in literature.
- The cost of developing African languages. To develop a language is capital intensive. It is therefore difficult to develop all the languages of Africa to be used in literature.
- Lack of commercial value (market) for literary works written in African Languages. Commercial value of novels, plays and poetry books written in African languages is infinitesimal (extremely small) compared to such works written in English or French.

- Lack of literacy in the African languages. In other words, it is hard to put most African languages in written form. This is a major factor that affects the commercial value of the literary works written in the languages.

- The problem of publication. Most publishers are not willing to publish works written in African Languages. Publishing of literary works in African languages is a biggest challenge. Most publishing houses are reluctant to publish these works because they have no experts in these languages.

QUESTION 4

a) "Partisans' song" is a song of freedom written by an anonymous poet that describes the movements of the partisans in fighting for their land.

b) Stanza five, determination, torture, and courage. Stanza ten Sacrifice and fighting for Freedom

c) Figures of speech.
   i. Metaphor.
   ii. Alliteration
   iii. Anaphora

1.5 @=9

d) Sacrifice, courage, unity, armed struggle.

QUESTION 5

a) Teleplay is a play written for television. In a teleplay, scenes can change quickly and dramatically. The camera can focus the viewer's attention on specific actions. The camera directions in teleplays are much like the stage directions in stage plays.

b) Tall Tale this is an exaggerated far-fetched story that is obviously untrue but is told as though it should be believed. Most tall tales are humorous. As tales are passed on, they often get taller and taller – more and more exaggerated

c) Coincidence. This is the fact of two things happening at the same time by chance, in a surprising way.

QUESTION 6

i. Alliteration
ii. An antagonist
iii. Exposition
iv. Dirge
v. Pastoral
vi. A cast of characters
vii. Suspense
viii. Conflict
ix. Foreshadowing

QUESTION 7. (This answer is just a sample and not the final answer)

Playscript

(when the curtain rises, Mayele is seen sitting under the tree, reading a novel. Feitoto comes and stands beside him. Without lifting his eyes from the novel he is reading Mayele greets Feitoto)

Mayele: Hello Mr Fei

Feitoto : (looking for a place to sit) Hello how is everything?

Mayele: (putting his novel aside to chat with the newcomer). We are doing great. Just missing your presence in the team.

Feitoto : I'm equally missing the good time we spent together. You know I regret for the decision I took to go against my club.

Mayele (aside, to the audience) He thought he was so special. Let him learn a bitter lesson. (To Feitoto) but the doors are still open you can join us back. The choice is yours.

(Enter Mwamnyeto dressed in his green jersey and yellow socks with green strips on both sides extending from the knee to the ankle. He has his headphones around his neck).

Mwamnyeto: Oh Mr Fei Zanzibar Finest… (Feitoto rises and they Embrace). How is everything?

Feitoto: (with half a smile) Just fine.

Mwamnyeto: But why are you not joining us back? You know we miss your support in the midfield part.

Feitoto: It is for that same reason I'm here. (he looks around to make sure they are all alone, then he speaks with a low tone) I have just come to see Hon. Eng. Hersi and ask for forgiveness. Life has beaten me on the face.

(Morrison and Farid are seen running towards where Mwamnyeto, Mayele and Feitoto are. After recognising Feitoto they both run towards him as if competing for the ball at the corner. They both open up their hands to give him a hug. Morison speaks when the greeting is over)

Morrison: What's up men! So nice to see you again. Have you….

Farid : (interrupting) come back to join us or just to say hi…

Morrison: As if you read my mind.

Feitoto: I…

(He sees the coach in his best travel track suit with Young African Sc logo on the chest. He runs toward him to give him a handshake before even being able to answer the question posed to him. He talks to Coach Nabi for a short time and the coach calls all the players to get ready for a trip to South Africa. Feitoto is left alone and he is heard speaking to himself)

Feitoto: (he is now left alone) This was very stupid of me to have betrayed the club that made me a football star. It's like I bit the finger with which my mother fed me. See how I'm missing these trips. God if you are there, help me get back to my club. I will never again disappoint by bosses. I have learnt a bitter lesson.

(He walks to the main gate)

(Curtain falls)

QUESTION 8

(a) Why is literature said to be an art? Three points.

- The use of figurative Language.
- Characters and characterisation.
- Choice and presentation of incidents (plot).
- The use of skilful narrative technique (style).
- Skilful creation of the setting.
- Literature has aesthetics (It has emotional appeal).

3 @=9

(b) Why is literature said to reflect social realities? Explain.

- Social realities are the things that human beings experience in their daily lives. There are issues like corruption, classes, humiliation, betrayal, FGM, HIV/AIDS, conflicts, position of women in the society, oppression, exploitation, identity and awareness, effects of European culture on African culture, etc. which are common in African literature.

(c) How does literature differ from other branches of art? Three points.

- Literature uses language.
- Literature has setting.
- Literature has performance.
- Literary works have form and content.

SECTION C (30 Marks)

A student is required to answer two (2) questions from this section.

QUESTION 9.

The student should agree with the statement that "White people are morally corrupt" and use two novels to prove the statement by showing the things that whites do to show that they are morally corrupt.

"The Oldman and the Medal"

- The whites exploit Africans. They have taken their land and force them to work for them. E.g., Meka's land has been taken in the name of religion.
- They are oppressors. Meka is tortured and oppressed on the day of receiving the medal.
- They are hypocrites. They pretend to love Africans but they segregate them. E.g., Meka is given a lift in the back of the car by Fr. Vandermayer though he was alone in the driver's cabin.
- They humiliate Africans. Meka is humiliated by whites to the point that he goes back to his pagan faith.

"Houseboy"

- The whites are infidel and promiscuous. M. Moreau sleeps with Madame Suzy and other white madames sleep with their houseboys.
- The Whites are betrayers. E.g., Madame Suzy and M. Moreau betray their spouses.
- The whites oppress and torture Africans. M. Gullet harasses and oppresses Africans.
- The Whites humiliate Africans. Madame Suzy gives the laundryman her sanitary towel to wash for her. Fr. Vandermayer undresses Africans to check if they have taken the money (offerings).
- The Whites are hypocrites. (Religious but not spiritual) E.g., Fr. Vandermayer beats Africans who have committed adultery but the whites do the same and he is quiet.

QUESTION 10. The student should agree with the statement that "bad leadership and misuse of power among leaders, hinder the achievement of aimed goals in many societies." They should give three points from Soyinka's "The Lion and the Jewel" and Gogol's "The Government Inspector" which show the misuse of power and bad leadership.

The Lion and the Jewel

- Baroka is corrupt. He bribes the surveyor to divert the railway project from his village.
- Baroka is Selfish. He thinks about himself and not the interest of his people.

- Baroka is infidel and promiscuous. He uses his power to win love from Sidi by beating his competitor – Lakunle. He also invites women for supper and ends up sleeping with them
- Baroka is an irresponsible leader. Instead of attracting development projects to his village he is against such projects.

The Government Inspector

Introduction	2
Points 6 x 2	=12
Conclusion	1
TOTAL	15

- The town officials (Mayor, SS, CC, judge) are corrupt. They use bribes to cover their weaknesses and their failings.
- The town officials are irresponsible. They do not fulfil their duties not until they hear the coming of the inspector-general that they provide band aid solutions.
- The government officials are selfish. The merchants complain the way the mayor is mistreating them if they refuse to give him what he wants. This is misuse of power.
- The mayor oppresses his people. He promises to make things hotter for those who accused him to Hlestakov.

QUESTION 11.

Analyse the use of musical/sound devices in two poems you have read and appreciated. Give three points from each poem.

From A freedom Song by Marjorie O Macgoye

- There is the use of Refrain. Every stanza ends with a refrain line "Atieno yo".
- There is the use of Rhymes. Every second and forth lines/verses end with identical rhymes
  - Chicken/kitchen
  - Pay/day
  - Kids/beads
  - Free/fee
  - Night/ right
  - Bad/had
  - All/funeral
- There is the use of Alliteration.
  - Pay party union fee
  - Atieno needs no pay
  - Fifty-fifty it may live.

From the Awful Dentist by Jwani Mwaikusa

- There is the use of Reiteration…
  - Making heaps and heaps of teeth (the word heaps is repeated for emphasis)
  - Without fear that soon/Very soon indeed (the word soon is repeated for emphasis)
- There is internal rhyme and end-rhyme in some verses.
  - Internal rhyme is shown in this verse. "Decaying teeth, aching teeth, strong teeth" (the sounds in these letters "ng" and "th" in this line bring about music in the poem.
  - End rhyme is shown in the 4th and 5th couplets of the second stanza in which the words "tooth" and "mouth" rhyme, but also "meat" and "eat" do rhyme.
- Consonance. There is repetition of the final consonants in the following line;
  - Decaying teeth, aching teeth, strong teeth

(Any other poem or any other musical device can be used.)
