SECTION C (30 MARKS)

Answer two questions from this section.

9. Read the following poem then answer the questions that follow.

To you dada
It's the day that matter;
for we are unable to chat in the language we had.

When I look at you
and see my pay – slip
in you eyes,
I feel empty
and sapped

Your glance, sister,
is to me the measure
of the heat of dough
in my pocket

never are passions cool,
to you I am now a tool,
and all my wage is now the fate:
I ride on your throbbing kisses.

It is you I accuse
Because your love is lost,
And you only touch me
With tenderness that asks where my wallet is.
It is you dada,
that my pen tears the pad,
for I only see your love focused on my purse,
with your passions
chasing my bank account.
