9. Read the following poem carefully and answer the given questions.

MIDNIGHT RAIN

Hear it now,
The sky has opened its heart,
And with it the tired earth drinks deep,
Softly it falls,
Unhurried.
Whispering songs upon the tin roofs,
With the patience of a long-suffering farmer.
Washing away the dust of a dry season,
With the calm of a quiet mind,
And the promise of a fruitful morrow,
And the promise of a fuller granary.

Sleep well, children,
Wait and see what harvest it brings at dawn,
How it repays the soil and the sower!

QUESTIONS

(i) What is the type of the poem?
(ii) What is the poem about?
(iii) What is the meaning of the title of the poem?
(iv) The poem talks about a 'long-suffering farmer'. Why do you think the farmer is described this way?
