Introduction (2 Marks)

Body Points (Any 6 points= 12 Marks):

(i) Creation of a Skilled Labour Force: Quality education equips citizens with technical knowledge and entrepreneurial skills necessary to drive industrial and technological sectors.

(ii) Increased Labour Productivity: Healthy citizens miss fewer working days due to illness, resulting in higher efficiency and sustainable industrial and agricultural output.

(iii) Reduction of Infant and Maternal Mortality: Proper healthcare investment improves prenatal, delivery, and postnatal care, ensuring a healthier future generation.

(iv) Eradication of Illiteracy: Access to primary and secondary schooling empowers citizens to understand their civic duties, make informed choices, and read financial or agricultural guides.

(v) Promotion of Gender Equality: Free or heavily subsidized school cycles remove financial barriers, allowing more girls to attain higher qualifications and enter the formal economic market.

(vi) Control and Prevention of Diseases: Effective investments in health services allow for rapid vaccination campaigns, public health education, and sanitation control, halting epidemic outbreaks before they derail the economy.

(vii) Reduction of Long-Term Dependency: Educated and healthy individuals are more self-reliant, reducing the financial strain on state welfare systems and family dependency ratios.

Conclusion (1 Mark): A brief summarizing statement emphasizing that social service investments are not merely financial costs..
